Florence Mills

Florence thought,

If my voice is powerful enough to stop the rain, what else can it do?

Word danced around Washington about the little girl with big talent. Florence was invited to perform at a fancy theater. The night before the show, she practiced her routine over and over.

On the day of the show, when Florence and her friends arrived at the theater, nothing was what Florence had dreamed it would be.

"They can't come in!" the manager said. He pointed to the sign that read WHITES ONLY. "No Negroes in the audience!"

Florence used her voice to stand up for what was right.

Recognizing the power of your voice. What would you speak up for?
